Scores Die When Boats Collide In Heavy Fog

Scores Drown As Passenger Boat Goes To Bottom

Many of Rescued Seriously Injured From Force of Collision.

CRASH IN HEAVY FOG

Tanker and Passenger Boat Meet In Fog Off Pigeon Point.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—Radio advices from two rescue ships indicate that 65 persons perished in the sinking of the coastwise passenger vessel San Juan 30 miles south of here early today. The rescue ships reported that they had picked up 35 of the more than 100 passengers and crew on board the ill-fated vessel.

The San Juan collided with the oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd, off Pigeon Point, Cal. Though one side of the Dodd was stove in by the collision, she lowered her boats and rescued many of the passengers and crew pitched into the sea as the San Juan sank.

Another steamer, the Munami, turned from her course nearby and aided in the rescue work. Several hours later the Dodd was on her way to San Francisco with 27 survivors aboard, several of them badly injured and in need of medical attention.

The San Juan left San Francisco last night for Los Angeles. She was an old vessel of some 1,700 tons, operated by the Los Angeles-San Francisco Navigation Co., featuring low rates for travel between the two cities. Most of the passengers were from Los Angeles.

Captain Stays With Ship
Survivors aboard the Dodd said that they saw Captain Adolph Adlund go down with his ship. They attribute a heavy fog, which had blanketed the region for several hours, as the cause of the collision.

Old Folks Have Real Day At County Line

One hundred and forty-two persons 65 years or older attended the Old Folks Day celebration at County line last Thursday and signed the old folks' register. The list reveals the fact that the old people attending came from many communities. There were many young people present for each old person, the crowd being a large one.

J. G. H. Buck of Murfreesboro, aged 92 years, was the oldest man present, and Mrs. Harriet Jones of Nashville, aged 89, was the oldest lady present.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weeb, of Hope, were among the youngsters attending this re-union of those who knew Arkansas in other years.

Eternal Triangle Functions Again

Body of Youth and Girl Found In Residence Section Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The bodies of Paul Leslie O'Dell, 20, railroad clerk, and an unidentified young woman were found today in Cliff Drive in the northeast portion of the city.

O'Dell had been shot through the head. The woman's body was badly bruised and her clothing disarranged. She had apparently been strangled to death.

Police are attempting to piece together a letter, torn into bits, found near O'Dell's body. The envelope disclosed that it was mailed August 28 from some point in Oklahoma.

Passages in the letter include "I love you," "going the limit," "paying the price," "money" and "maybe."

The girls head was bruised, apparently from a beating with a revolver, pieces of the weapon being found on the ground near by. Two empty shells and one loaded were found near O'Dell's body.

Train Returning, Industrial Tour Ends Tomorrow

UTILITIES VISITED

Tourists Amazed At Success of Canadian Government Ownership.

By GROVER A. ZINN
Special Correspondent The Star

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Arriving in the Mid-West metropolis shortly after dawn this morning the South Arkansas tourists started out on their last day of sightseeing.

Late today they will turn their faces toward St. Louis, the Gateway to Dixie. The Arkansas Travelers left South Bend, Ind., late Wednesday night after a strenuous day in visiting that city's industrial section.

At Little Rock Saturday morning the group will begin to scatter and by noon the last stop will be made at Camden.

Tour Near Close

EN ROUTE TO DIXIE, with the South Arkansas Tour, Aug. 30.—With a vast wealth of information at their finger tips, gleaned from personal observation, civic speakers, board of trade pamphlets and in not a few cases, conductors of sightseeing buses, the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce tourists, 86 in number, are heading toward Dixie, with only a few more stops left on the 10-day itinerary that led them through six states and across Lake Ontario into Toronto, the metropolis of Ontario, and key city of the Dominion.

The last customs inspection has been passed safely and no more will the proud residents of the Wonder State have their veducity questioned by being ordered to open baggage for inspection at the border. The Canadian frontier was crossed for the last time when the special train was ferried across the Detroit river at the great automobile center in the gray dawn Wednesday. Albeit, the minions of law in the land of King George have showed the tourists every courtesy each of the dozen times they crossed the border, and Uncle Sam's men, whose principal business it is to ferret out any specimens of Canada's well known wet goods that have been inadvertently placed in bags in the rush to catch boat or train.

Warmly Received

If any member of the trip had harbored thoughts that hospitality ends at the Canadian border then he or she has without doubt changed that opinion long ere now. For we had barely had time to breathe of the cool breezes of Toronto when a high official of the board of trade (they don't call them chamber of commerce up there) buttonholed Luther Ellison and gave him and the party an official welcome to the city. He assured the trippers that Canada has the most cordial feeling for folks from the United States, even down in Dixie. Presently we learned, from this same congenial gentleman that a large per cent of the population of the city of Toronto and the province of Ontario is composed of Americans who have gone north to seek their fortune.

Municipal Utilities

Toronto is proud of its record in handling transportation and public utilities as a government job. The city transportation commission, a representative of the board of trade told your correspondent, has complete charge of the street railway system, which is entirely owned by the municipal government. The members are appointed to their position for long terms, (continued on page six)

A Toast---and a Few Minutes Later All Were Dead!

They drank a toast to success—and a few minutes later six high Japanese army officers, including Major General Ogawa, crashed to death near Tokio in one of the newest Japanese army bombers. It was one of the worst accidents in Japanese aviation history. The officers, drinking their last toast, are shown above. This picture was brought to the United States on the Graf Zeppelin.

New Hospital Is Urged To Rotary

Chap Weltman, Ass'n. Chairman, Declares Need for One.

"The tremendous demands upon Julia Chester hospital have precipitated a crisis that will only be relieved by the immediate construction of a new city and county hospital," Chap Weltman, chairman of the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital association, told the Rotary club at its luncheon today in the Barlow hotel.

The Julia Chester institution is overcrowded, Mr. Weltman said, and while the hospital is self-sustaining it must depend on public donations for any improvements.

"What we need," the chairman went on to say, "is a city and county hospital of 25 rooms, with a charity ward of six or eight rooms, and a negro ward of similar size. Such a hospital would cost between $25,000 and $35,000, according to present estimates. The hospital association owns an excellent building site in the southern part of the city and all we need now is a feasible plan for financing the cost of the building." Mr. Weltman asked members of the Rotary club to submit individual ideas on the best way in which to finance it.

Ben Eastin and Jack Strange, of the Stamps Rotary club, were guests of the local club. Mr. Eastin described a forthcoming South Arkansas publication to be issued in conjunction with the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce, advertising the resources of the 21 southern counties.

Dr. W. A. Bowen, pastor of the First Baptist church, who was also a guest, spoke enthusiastically of Mr. Eastin's project. "I have noticed," Dr. Bowen said, "that there is a tendency nowadays to advertise an entire section of a state rather than one city. Arkansas might well follow the lead of other states which are grouping many counties together to tell the story of their resources and advantages to the outside world."

Joe Canzoneri, who is singing at Dr. Bowen's revival service in the First Baptist church this week, appeared before the club in two numbers, which were enthusiastically received.

Wave of Suicides Sweeps Texarkana

Hempstead County Youth Is One of Pair Trying Poison.

TEXARKANA, August 30.—(AP)—A youth and a woman here are in a serious condition from self-administered poison while Bowie county officers are investigating the death of another woman in a suicide wave which apparently has swept Texarkana in the past two days.

Facing arrest on a forgery charge Cliff Likes, 17, drank poison as officers approached him in a filling station. He is a Hempstead county resident and drank the poison while officers were seeking to serve a warrant on him.

Mrs. Grace Helms drank poison late yesterday and is reported in a critical condition. No reason is assigned for her action.

The death of Mrs. Gladys Small, 23, Wednesday night is being investigated following reports that she drank poison.

Arabs In Attack On Jewish Homes

Further Trouble Feared As Arabs Come From Mosques Today.

JERUSALEM, August 30.—(AP)—Five Jews were killed and 20 wounded when Arabs attacked homes in the Jewish section of the ancient city of Safed last night. They set fire to the buildings on the main Jewish street where it was known that oil was stored. Troops reinforced the police patrol and after a sharp encounter finally succeeded in quelling the disorders.

Arabs again attacked the Jewish colony at Tellich between Jerusalem and Bethlehem today. They were repulsed by a platoon of British troops stationed there to prevent disorders.

Further Trouble Feared

Tension prevailed throughout Jerusalem today, officials expecting a renewal of the trouble when the Arabs emerge from their mosques today. Under the Arab calendar, today is Sunday and their day of worship.

"Open Sunday" Is Leading Blue Law With 4 to 1 Vote

Sunday Amusements Poll 53 Votes, To 14 Against.

HAVE YOU VOTED?

Over-Night Returns Indicate Stronger Support for Blue Law.

A burst of opposition ballots last night and this morning reduced the lead which Sunday amusements had assumed in The Star's straw vote, but advocates of a more liberal Sunday law continued to show a margin of nearly four to one.

The total vote at 11 o'clock this morning was:

For Sunday amusements.....53

Against them.....14

The same ratio was maintained on the proposition advocated editorially by The Star, to amend the state law to permit cities to vote on Sunday closing.

While the advocates of Sunday entertainment continued to hold their long lead, the over-night voting told another story. At the last tabulation the count stood: For Sunday amusements 32; against 5—a majority of better than six to one. The over-night vote was: For 21; against 9—or hardly more than two to one, indicating a stronger opposition.

The Star is continuing to publish the daily ballot, asking all its readers to vote so that the result will be as comprehensive as a regular election. The same rules will be applied, as to age, residence and duplications.

City votes and votes from the county will be tabulated separately before the final count is announced.

Veterans Demand Dry Referendum

In Turbulent Session V. F. W. Demand Law Submitted To Vote.

ST. PAUL, Minn., August 30.—(AP)—In the most turbulent session of its 30th annual convention the Veterans of Foreign Wars today went on record for a national referendum on the 18th amendment, after tabling a resolution asking for an out-and-out repeal of the dry law.

While dozens of delegates clamored for recognition on the floor the two proposals were received with shouts of approval and derision. Finally, quieted, the convention listened to spokesmen who took the floor for and against the proposition.

Gun Battle Brings Death To Battlers

Workman and Officer Shoot It Out and Both Are Dead.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., August 30.—(AP)—Ed S. Rogers, 38, Mecklenburg county rural policeman, and H. L. LaQuire cotton mill worker, were killed today in a gun battle at Paw Creek, 19 miles from here. LaQuire, according to Frank Bibb, Rogers' partner, opened fire on Rogers when the latter halted him as he turned his car in the business district of Paw Creek. Rogers was shot in the abdomen, dying a few minutes later. After being shot and falling to the ground he fired at LaQuire, shooting him through the heart.

Wrigley Marathon Swim For Women Under Way

TORONTO, Ontario, August 30.—(AP)—A big field of contestants in the Wrigley Canadian national 15-mile swim in Lake Ontario entered the water at 11:08 this morning, racing for the $35,000 in prizes offered.

Will Supervise Restoration Work

All-Day Singing Planned At Bodcaw for Sunday

Announcement is made that the annual singing will be held at Bodcaw Sunday next, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to bring a song book and lunch and join in the good time.

A special musical program, presenting some of the best known quartettes in south Arkansas, is being arranged and an entirely pleasant day is in store for those who attend.

Canning Display To Win Premiums

Pantry Exhibit To Be Given Special Attention At Fair.

All of the good things to eat, so commonly associated with grandmother's table, will be shown in bewildering array at the coming Southwest Arkansas Fair, Hope, September 23 to 28, according to plans announced today.

The display of canned fruits and vegetables will be a big one as usual. Supplementing the canned exhibits, will be imposing rows of glasses and jars of apple butter, jams, marmalades, and quivering jellies.

All of the common vegetables can be canned to advantage, as fair visitors will find. The cold-pack method, endorsed everywhere, and particularly for boys' and girls' club work, will be the most popular method used.

All of the pickles common to the housewife's larder will be exhibited, including big and little cucumber pickles, and pickles made from peaches, pears, tomatoes, beans, apples, onions and hosts of other fruits and vegetables.

Liberal prizes for all kinds of women's work will be contested for this year at the fair. Other fields in addition to canning have been honored by the fair, and big exhibits in every department are expected.

Never in the history of the fair has such attention been given to women, and the products of the home.

Keep "Human History" of Company's Progress

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The American Telephone and Telegraph company maintains a special department for preservation of its "human history."

The company's record of mechanical and scientific progress is complete and detailed from its organization in 1885 until the present time. Until eight years ago, the personalities responsible for this progress were remembered only casually.

Dynamite Bombs In Strike Zone

Clinchfield Mills Scene of Explosion Which Wrecks Room.

MARION, N. C., August 30.—(AP)—The opening room at the Clinchfield cotton mills was wrecked by an explosion of dynamite early today. Deputy sheriffs on guard at the mill failed to catch the dynamiters.

The explosion today was the first of a series which has caused many damages, though no one was injured in the blast. The explosions have occurred since the mill reopened after closing down because of a strike of employees.

The opening room is where bales of cotton are opened when brought into the mill.

Name Members All Citizens Here and Will Accept Offer

Restoration of War-Time Capitol Duty of Commission.

TO ELECT CHAIRMAN

Mrs. J. A. Henry, of Hope, One of Three Named To Serve.

LITTLE ROCK, August 30.—(AP)—The Wartime Capitol Memorial Association, created by an act of the 1929 legislature for the restoration and preservation of the war-time capitol of the state at Washington, in Hempstead county, was appointed today by Governor Farnell.

Members of the commission are Mrs. T. Y. Williams, of Washington; Mrs. J. A. Henry, of Hope, and Col. W. H. Etter of Washington. Mrs. Williams was named for the two year term, Mrs. Henry for four years and Col. Etter for the six year term. The commission will meet and select its own chairman.

The commission was created under a measure introduced by Curtis Cannon, representative from Hempstead county, and sponsored by the United Daughters of the Confederacy throughout the state.

The sum of $5,000 was appropriated for restoring the old building exactly as it was when the state's capitol and the money is now in the hands of Miss Lillie Middlebrook, county treasurer.

Col. Etter, one of the commission members, knows as much about the old building, perhaps, as any man in the county and his selection by the governor was a happy one. Both Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Henry are active United Daughters workers and will take keen pleasure in doing what they may to make of the old capitol a shrine for loyal citizens of the state.

Elks Will Stage Labor Day Dance

"Start At Midnight, Dance To Daylight, Sleep All Day" Is Plan.

Talbot Field, secretary of local B. P. O. Elks, announces a German dance at the hall for Labor Day, beginning at 12:01 a. m. and lasting until daylight. Jimmy Prior's ten-piece orchestra has been secured for the occasion, a guarantee that the music will be of the best.

The dances in the hall here have attained a rare degree of popularity among the younger set through this section of country and it is expected a record crowd will be on hand when Jimmy and his musical cohorts swing into the opening bars of their first dance number.

B. & P. W. Club Minstrel Rehearsals Under Way

Rehearsals for the minstrel show to be presented Friday of next week by the Business and Professional Women's Club are being held daily and those in charge of the affair are elated at the progress being made.

Many of those taking part have had considerable experience in stage work and the experience is nothing new to them. That is one reason why things are going on so smoothly too and one that promises a rare treat to show lovers when the curtain goes up on "The Gathering of the Crows."

THE PAWN OF A CROOK

That's What Helen Page Becomes In New Serial, "The Innocent Cheat"

Crammed with thrilling adventure and romance, the story of "The Innocent Cheat," which starts next Tuesday in the Hope Star, revolves about the life of Helen Page, a beautiful orphan girl, who became the unwitting pawn of her guardian, Leonard Brent, in a fiendish plot to rob an aged millionaire of his fortune. Watch for the first installment of this sparkling new serial Tuesday.

The Star's Straw Vote

A BALLOT has been running in the news columns of The Star this week asking our readers to express themselves on two points, (1) Sunday amusement in Hope, and (2) a "home rule" amendment to the state law to place Sunday regulation in the hands of the city councils, just as it was in colonial days.

We aren't satisfied with the number of votes turned in thus far. We don't believe many people are voting. Some who want Sunday movies very badly have been quick to vote; others who are just as much opposed to them, have taken the trouble to vote also—but there are hundreds who probably have an opinion but are neglecting to express it.

This is in no wise different from the principles which govern a regulation election—the honors go to the folks who take the trouble to vote. The Star wants a representative vote, both from the City of Hope and from the territory in Hempstead and surrounding counties. The straw vote has nothing to do with our opinion in the matter. Our opinions are always expressed in this column—the news columns are confined to facts and statements from other folks. If you have voted in The Star's straw vote, then you are helping to make that news story; if you haven't voted, then you are willing that somebody else shall make the story for you.

There are two things to be voted on in the straw ballot, and while they appear closely allied, The Star is more interested in one than the other. So far as Sunday amusements in Hope are concerned, that is a question for the people of Hope to decide. But as a newspaper, recording daily events, and observing the good and bad effects of state law, we have a vital interest in seeing to it that the law permits the people to express themselves.

The Star is not necessarily committed one way or the other on the Sunday amusement issue. We will be governed by the majority on that. But we are committed, and propose a finish fight, for the amendment of the state law to bring Sunday closing authority back to the city councils of Arkansas.

Laws purely local in their effect invariably depend upon local authority for enforcement. Local authority will be governed by local sentiment, regardless what the state law says about it. One way to settle the Blue Law controversy is for the legislature to give Arkansas cities home rule and let every city decide for itself. It's the rule that four out of five cities are following anyway.

Getting Outdoors

ONE of the most promising signs for a more healthy nation in the future is the great spread of the fad of spending more time outdoors.

The automobile, of course, has done much along this line. Before motor cars began to jam the highways, millions of children in the cities failed to get the amount of real country fresh air and sunshine that they should have. Charitable organizations arranged trips into the country for them just to get some fresh air.

But now with the ownership of automobiles so widely distributed, the number of families who cannot get their children away for brief periods at least from the comparatively impure air of the cities has greatly decreased.

More people are spending vacations at outdoor camps than ever before. Golf courses, swimming pools, tennis courts and other playgrounds are crowded. The army of "tin can" tourists is increasing from year to year. The "sun tan" fad has spread like wildfire over the country and children with their scanty summer clothing are getting the greatest possible benefit out of those mysterious rays of the sun which, doctors say, mean so much to their future health.

Nature provided a wonderful land for us to live in, but many of us have been too long in discovering that fact.

An Amazing Tale

The current North American Review prints an interview with the well-known Al Capone, in which Chicago's alleged vice king is quoted as saying that he and his gang leaders have been spending no less than $30,000,000 a year in Chicago to bribe legal authorities and political higher-ups.

In his Pennsylvania prison cell Capone has denied the authenticity of the interview—a not entirely surprising move, often indulged in by more reputable public characters.

All Those in Favor of a 13-Month Calendar Say—!

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — The members of the United States Senate have always professed to be just a little bit better persons than any other persons, but there certainly have been times when their claims were often open to question.

Now, says Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter, there isn't any more doubt about it. A senator has to set himself up as a model of probity or he is very soon out of luck. McWhorter is rather plaintive in his comments. One gets the idea that he believes senators ought to be left entirely on their honor—that is, that they ought to have the opportunity to decide for themselves whether or not they want to behave.

"Take," says Senator McWhorter, "this vicious custom of White House breakfasts."

"I can remember when an invitation to breakfast at 8 o'clock in the morning would have been an insult in this town. The ordinary member of Congress would demand to know why his sleep has to be broken up right in the middle of it. But now whenever the president has anything important to talk about he invites people around for breakfast and they have to go."

"How is anybody going to be able to stay out all night if he has to get to the White House by 8 o'clock? All would be well if you merely had to show up and say 'Present', but you're supposed to have a lot of bright ideas about complicated subjects. Anybody knows it's hard enough to have bright ideas on any subject at 8 a. m., let alone after a late poker party. Being prominent here simply means an early bedtime."

"Once we used to have a little secrecy in the Senate. Whenever a statesman or several statesmen decided that they could do their constituents more good in the long run by voting against their best interests on a single occasion, we could go right into executive session and there would be no need of embarrassing explanations. We could put our feet upon the desks and smoke at these sessions, too. But now whenever we vote in supposedly secret session some scoundrel goes and prints the roll call and they're talking about abolishing these comfortable sessions altogether."

"It's got so bad around here that whenever you want a man appointed to office now you have to take one who has some qualifications."

Eventually we will be voting on the tariff and the Maker of us all only knows how many of us will be able to vote as we want to vote. Much as it may hurt, we've simply got to be noble.

"Sometimes I long for the good old days when we had some real scandals around here. The trouble with having a virtuous president without any human weaknesses is that the rest of us have to be virtuous, too."

Jewish Wailing Wall Worn Smooth In Ages of Sorrowing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Crimson stains again color the wailing wall of Jerusalem, a sacrifice to the enduring faith of true believers measured out by wrathful Arabs.

Foreheads to stone for countless generations, until the rough-hewn blocks have become smooth and shiny, the Jews lamented at this spot "for the majesty that is departed; for walls that are overthrown."

Center point of clash between the Jews and Arabs over rights of religious worship, the Wailing Wall marks the nucleus of fighting which has spread through the Jewish quarters.

For the Moslem, the rocky barrier, towering 60 feet, is a retaining wall enclosing the dome of the rock, Mohammedan shrine and most sacred spot in the city.

For the Jew it is a buttress of Solomon's temple, erected a thousand years before Christ, and therefore a sacred heritage. During long years of Mohammedan dominion it was the nearest part of the sacred enclosure which a Jew dared approach.

In the narrow alley, between the lofty wall and the low enclosure formed by backs of yards and Mohammedan houses, Jews have gathered since the middle ages.

A desolate chant is repeated again and again as, on Friday afternoons and Saturdays, the Jews meet to wait for the ancient glories of the past.

"Because of the palace that lies desolate," a self-appointed leader recites and the lamenters join in with the refrain, "We sit in solitude and ween."

The Wailing Wall is situated just outside the western wall of the temple in a quarter inhabited by Jews and many ink-black Mohammedans from North Africa.

It is a place of peculiar decoration, approached through devious paths, by winding stairs, vaulted passages and dirty lanes. Through the narrow side streets pilgrim and tourists alike have wended their way through tortuous turnings that lead to the place of racial lamentation.

The wall rises sheer as a cliff, fashioned of huge stone blocks, and

Between the unplastered crevices spring small sprigs of growing plants. Lower stones bear Hebrew inscriptions.

The barrier is believed to have been part of the substructure of the Jewish temple itself. The original temple was built by King Solomon on the summit of Mount Moriah, where it is said Abraham made his preparations for the sacrifice of Isaac, on a flat rock which later became the threshing floor of Ornan, the Jebusite.

"THE PAGAN" PICTURES STRUGGLE OF ISLANDS

"The Pagan," Ramon Novarro's vivid tropical romance, filmed in the South Seas, is the new attraction now playing at the Saenger theatre. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, a sound synchronized film, with singing sequences which introduce Novarro's voice to the screen, was adapted from John Russell's famous novel and directed by W. S. Van Dyke, director of "White Shadows in the South Seas." It is a dramatic tale of a young island's strife with civilization.

Noted Educator Guest of His Pioneer School

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(AP)— Back to the frame school house of one room on the Nebraska prairies where he taught 46 years ago,
J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education association, will go August 31.

There he will greet former associates and pupils from all over Nebraska who will attend the golden jubilee of the school which is known as Fairview District and is two miles from Elmwood.

The building was erected 50 years ago when James William Crabtree was a farm boy. He will be at the reunion as representative of the largest professional organization in the world. His address will be one of the high spots of the program.

Fifty-two children attended Fairview school in the seven terms Mr.
Crabtree served as teacher. Some have become leaders in business and the professions.

Fairview school was organized in 1870, soon after the first settlers came. In its 59-year history it has had 66 teachers. More than a score of them will be at the reunion.

Post Boy, Ohio, got its name from a murder victim. It was named for a mail carrier slain in the early days.

Bandits' Confessions Clear $238,000 Lamar Bank Robbery

LAMAR, Colo., Aug. 26.—From the lips of three of the men who did it, has come the "inside story" of the worst crime in the history of the modern west—the $238,000 holdup of the First National Bank of Lamar on May 23, 1928, featured by the murder of four persons.
Three of the men arrested by had threatened to take an X-ray picture of an old wound in his face to prove it was made by a bullet.

Abshier and Royston, enraged by having been "double crossed," then "told all."

According to their stories, it was Jake Fleagle who shot and killed
A. N. Parrish, aged bank president, and his son, John Parrish, after the elder Parrish had shot Royston in the mouth while resisting the holdup. With E. W. Kesinger, bank employee whom they kidnaped, the bandits fled to Kleagle's ranch near Garden City, Kan., using Kesinger
as a human shield when Sheriff Alderman fired on them in hot pursuit.

Doctor Coly Murdered.
Then Dr. W. W. Wincinger of Dighton, Kan., was decoyed to the ranch by Jake Fleagle to treat Royston's terrible wound in the mouth. This completed, Abshier says, Jake Fleagle shot and killed the doctor to silence him. The body was thrown into a canyon, and the doctor's auto driven over behind it.

Meanwhile, Kesinger was kept bound and gagged in a shack on the ranch. For two days, Abshier says, Jake and Ralph Fleagle argued over who was to kill Kesinger.
Finally, they both entered the shack

Sheriff L. E. Alderman of Lamar and Police Chief Hugh D. Harper of Colorado Springs in the course of a sensational 15-months manhunt have confessed. They are Ralph Fleagle, of Garden City, Kan., captured by Sheriff Alderman in Illinois; George J. Abshier, Colorado oil driller and gambler, and Herbert L. Royston, a trusted engineer in a large cement plant at San Andreas, Calif.

$700 Reward for "Killer"

With a reward of $700 on his head, the fourth man, Jack Fleagle —a brother of Ralph—is now being hunted throughout the civilized world as the actual killer, with the Colorado State Bankers' Association determined to effect his capture, dead or alive.

After sitting sullenly in his cell for weeks, Ralph Fleagle confessed and implicated Abshier and Royston, who were quickly captured.
Fleagle broke down after officers

A Peace Pact That Didn't Last

There was to be everlasting peace between the two races when this picture was taken at the signing of a treaty between the Jews and the Arabs, after rioting at Petach Tikvah. But religious strife has flamed anew in the Holy Land, and fresh riots in Palestine have claimed scores of lives, menaced residents, and caused Britain to land heavy forces of troops and marines in the trouble zone.

together and a shot was heard.
Then they took Kesinger's body several miles away and dumped it beside the road.

The bandits separated, but a fingerprint left on Dr. Wincinger's car by Jake Fleagle when he de-coyed the doctor to the ranch proved the clue that led to their undoing. It was by this means that Sheriff Alderman traced the gang.

Loot Is Divided
Abshier says that only $25,000 of the loot was in cash and Liberty bonds, the rest being in nonnegotiable paper. The Fleagles he said, look $9000 each, leaving only a little more than $600 to be divided between Abshier and Royston. And Royston says he paid out almost all his share to have his wounded jaw treated at St. Paul, where he fled.

The three probably will go to trial in Lamar on Sept. 17. Officers say they realize that they probably will be hanged for the crime.

Meanwhile, the search for Jake Fleagle, who is said to have planned the robbery and to have recruited the others, goes on.

Our method does more than remove wrinkles. It actually restores the origi-

If you wish to be pre-

The RAINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Molly Burnham, whose suitors make her miserable, is experimenting with a trial engagement. Bob Newton, the man on approval, is making a highly satisfactory fiancé. But Molly does not really love him. She is considering marriage with him for two reasons. First, he is the father of a little girl whom she adores, and wants for her own. The second reason is Jack Wells. Molly loves Jack with all her heart. But he has told her flatly that he will never marry her. Molly, you see, is rich and famous. And Jack is not. He declares that he could never bear to be known as Mister Molly Burnham.

Then one day Red Flynn, who also loves Molly, telephones to say that Jack Wells is in town. Red is going to meet him that evening, and asks Molly if he shall bring him out to her flat. But Molly has a dinner engagement with Bob. She has promised to marry him, if the engagement proves a success. And she means to play the game, and abide by all the rules. She tells Red that she does not want to see Jack.

Bob breaks his dinner engagement. Feeling very lonely and forsaken, Molly decides to see if she can reach Jack by phone. If Bob breaks his appointment with her, then surely she has the right to ask an old friend to call. She is crying with vexation and grief, when the bell rings.

Now Go On With the Story CHAPTER XLV

It was Red Flynn, and he was alone. Characteristically he wasted no time.

"Good Lord, Molly, what have you done now?"

"I don't know," she rubbed her eyes with the back of her hand. "What have I done?"

"You don't know!" he exclaimed. "What are you crying for then?"

"Me? Oh—I don't know. I'm just—crying—that's all. What did I do?"

"Nobody's been up here yet?"

"No, nobody's been here. Where's Jack? How does he look? Do you think he loves me a bit, Red? Just the littlest bit? What did he come to Boston for . . . For goodness sake, what's the matter? Can't you answer me?"

"One at a time," he begged. "And you'd better leave Jack out for a while. He's at the Copley now. But he'll probably go back to New York when he sees the morning papers. Sure, he loves you. He's cuckoo over you, that's what he is. Cuckoo . . . And now will you tell me what's the big idea of getting yourself engaged to a guy like Newton?"

"Engaged?" repeated Molly stupidly. "Me—engaged?"

"Sure. You heard me the first time. Come on now, let's get this straight, Molly. Didn't you tell Newton you'd married him?"

"Yes," she admitted. "I did—sort of."

"What do you mean—sort of?"

"Well, it was sort of a trial engagement, you see. We're trying it out, kind of. If Bob's nice for three months, then—if he still loves me—it's a secret, you see . . . Nobody knows about it."

"Nobody knows about it!—Say, the whole town knows about it. Newton's been drinking all day in one of those speakeasies on Stuart street, and talking his head off. It's a co-educational speakeasy. There were some show girls in there from 'Hello, Mike,' and naturally they spilled the beans. There are a flock of reporters out now looking for Newton. He drifted away from the joint where he's been making speeches, and they haven't located him yet. It's a wonder they haven't been here to get a story from you."

"Oh, dear. Oh dear!"

"A hell of a mess!" exploded Red irritably. "Imogene Starr says he showed her the diamond he has for you. Seems he's been carrying it around in his pocket. Maybe he's lost it by this time."

"What can I do, Red?"

"Deny the engagement. Say it's a darn lie. The gang will be out here pretty soon. I'll duck before they get here. Tell them there must be a mistake. That you and Newton are only friends—you know the gag. No romance at all. Say there's some unfortunate misunderstanding. Don't let them kid you into making any speeches. Just play dumb. If you say too much, you'll antagonize Newton. And you know what he is when he gets started."

"I'm awfully sorry, Red. It's pretty much my fault. Bob's wretched to drink. I'm not blaming myself for that. But I think it would be pretty unbecoming to deny the engagement. You see, we are engaged, only, of course, it's supposed to be a secret. I'd be letting Bob down pretty badly if I should call him a liar. It would be a rotten trick."

"Serve him right," insisted Red stubbornly. "Serve him darn good and right. What business has he shooting his head off about you to a lot of bums in a speakeasy? Flashing a diamond, and all that stuff. I've warned you before Molly. You never should have got mixed up with a guy like him."

"But there's Rita," she moaned. "Yes. And there's Jack, too. Didn't you ever think about him? I told you before Rita's not the only cute kid that's ever going to get born. Haven't you any ambition yourself? Don't you want a kid of your own."

"I want Rita."

"Oh, all right. Have it your own way. Rita's a nice little kid. I haven't a thing against her. Go

Sixteen on Trial for Police Chief's Murder in Textile Strike

For the killing of one man, the prosecution in the celebrated murder trial in Charlotte, N. C., is seeking the death penalty for every man shown in the above photo, and a second-degree verdict for the Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt, of Gastonia, N. C., who was shot to death during a raid on strikers' headquarters last June. The men Byers, W. H. McGinnis, George Carter, J. C. Heffner, Robert Allen, Lawrence Miller and Harry McLaughlin. The trio of women, left to right: Sophie Melvin, of the Young Communists' League; Vera Bush, organizer for the National Textile Workers; and Amy Schachter, of the National Textile Strikers' Union, is shown at the extreme right, and Harrison, another union leader who played an important part in organ-ahead, and get your ready-made family! Go ahead, and marry Newton."

"Jack doesn't know about it yet?" she interrupted.

"No. I left him, and went back to the office. Someone phoned in, while I was there. They were digging up your pictures when I came out. And they've all the clippings out of the morgue. They're going to do a great job on you. Well, I guess I'll be moseying along. Let your conscience be your guide, and watch your step, old thing."

"Tell me," she demanded. "Did Jack have anything special to say? Anything about me, I mean?"

"Not a thing. There's one guy that doesn't wear his heart on his sleeve."

"What did he say about Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton? Please tell me," she coaxed.

"Not now. Do you good to keep you guessing for a while. Besides, I've got to go. No sense letting the gang know I tipped you off."

Red had scarcely left, when the first news hound put in an appearance. He had been searching for Bob, who proved elusive prey.

"I've nothing to say," she told him.

"But surely you will confirm the engagement? Perhaps Mr. Newton spoke out of turn, but you're not denying that an engagement exists, are you, Miss Burnham?"

"I've nothing to say," she repeated. And that, through all the night, was her reply. "Nothing to say," "nothing to say."

Reporters came in droves, hot on the scent of romance. Give a good newspaper man a romance, and he take it in his teeth as a dog does a bone.

The bright young men and women of the press, put two and two together. And, in the morning—although Molly had made no statement, and Bob had not been discovered—their romance led the papers.

Natus laid the folded sheet at Molly's place at breakfast. There were her pictures. And there were pictures of Red Flynn. And a rehash of that suspected romance. There were pictures, too, of little Rita. And one of Rita's mother, taken from the college year book. Pictures of everyone, but Bob. Molly remembered hearing him say once that he never had a photograph taken.

She read the stories angrily, reflecting that any exploited romance seems silly and foolish. The publicity, she knew, would make Bob writhe. But it was his own fault. It served him right. If only it wasn't a boomerang that came hurtling back to her and Rita! And then there was Jack. Always, always Jack. She had not heard from him. And now it was nearly 10 o'clock.

An enterprising sleuth found Bob for the first afternoon editions. Before the papers were on the streets, Red telephoned to say that Bob was referring inquirers to Molly, and had announced that confirmation must come from her. The story would be out shortly. They were leading with it.

"It's strange he doesn't get in touch with me," she said.

"Maybe he's afraid to," suggested Red.

"I haven't heard a word from Jack either."

"No? You didn't expect to, did you? Well, I was talking to him myself a few minutes ago. I told him Newton was off his nut, and that you were darn near crazy. Now listen, Molly, and do as I tell you. Get out of town, until things quiet down a bit. Don't wait to hear from Jack. He's sort of up in the air himself. Talking with him won't help you a bit."

"Is he angry, Red?"

"Well, I don't know what you'd call it exactly. He isn't what I'd say was peaceful-feeling. You do what I tell you, Molly, and clear out for a while. Take Rita with you, and beat it. Will you?"

She hesitated.

"I hate to run away."

"Don't be silly. What's the sense of sticking around? You'll be getting in a jam with Newton first thing you know. You can't talk

Have Marie take her to the park, as usual, and tell her to stay there long enough to make sure they're not being watched. Then, when the coast is clear, tell her to take a taxi to the South Station, and go directly to the waiting room."

"Leave the house a while later yourself. Hope out your own program. But contrive to throw them off the track some time between now and three o'clock. Get a taxi, and use your wits. There's an afternoon train for Lenox. All you have to do is to get to the station in time to pick up Marie and Rita, and make that train. If you'll do it, I'll wire ahead for rooms for you. What do you say?"

"I'll do it, Red, if you think it's the wisest thing. I'll do whatever you say."

"Atta girl. I'll make the reservation in the name of Mrs. William Blake. Don't take any bugs. There's a crowd in front of your place now, I suppose. Well, don't excite their suspicions. You can have your stuff sent up later. Everything o. k.?"

"Fine!" she said. "You're a great little manager, Red."

"You need a manager," he growled. "Better get married, Molly."

"Don't talk to me about marriage!"

"All right. I won't. Run along now, and do everything the way (continued on page six)

nie Treats 'Em Nice
Connie Mack, according to Ed Collins, has never bawled a player out. There are some managers who believe in that kind of talk.

Chuck Hendricks resorts to sarcasm and he has a sharp tongue. He can slice a tender-skinned player.

John McGraw not only is a veritable fastidist, but he has a pet upon in slapping a healthy fine on a player who is out of order. Miller Huggins, several years ago, used to discipline his bad players by fining them. But the method wasn't exactly successful. A Soft-Hearted Colonel Colonel Til Houston was half-owner of the club at the particular time and he didn't like Huggins. Whenever the little manager would order some money taken out of an athlete's pay, the colonel would interfere.

"Don't say anything," he would tell the fined athlete. "I'll get the dough back for you."

Players Ask Him for It

Collins says in all the years he has been around Connie Mack he never has heard the old man say an unkind word to a ball player. "I have known of many cases where his ball players who had done something wrong on the field would come in and ask him what was wrong. He would tell them in that kind way of his."

"It is true that he signals quite a lot in moving the fielders from place to place, but he almost always lets his pitcher alone unless the pitcher looks over to him for advice.

He Suggests Pitching

"They say that McGraw calls every pitch, but Connie has another way of giving instructions. "Supposing that Ruth is coming up the next inning and the pitcher working for us is sitting next to Connie. Connie might say, just for instance: 'The Babe hits high ones inside. I don't believe would should give him any high ones inside.'"

"Mack never tolerates spies on his ball clubs. He just lets the players know the training rules—there are very few of them—and if they don't live up to them he won't keep them on the ball club."

Old Friends Part
Jack Kearns and Teddy Hayes, pals and partners in the fight racket for 14 years, have parted, according to the story heard in New York.

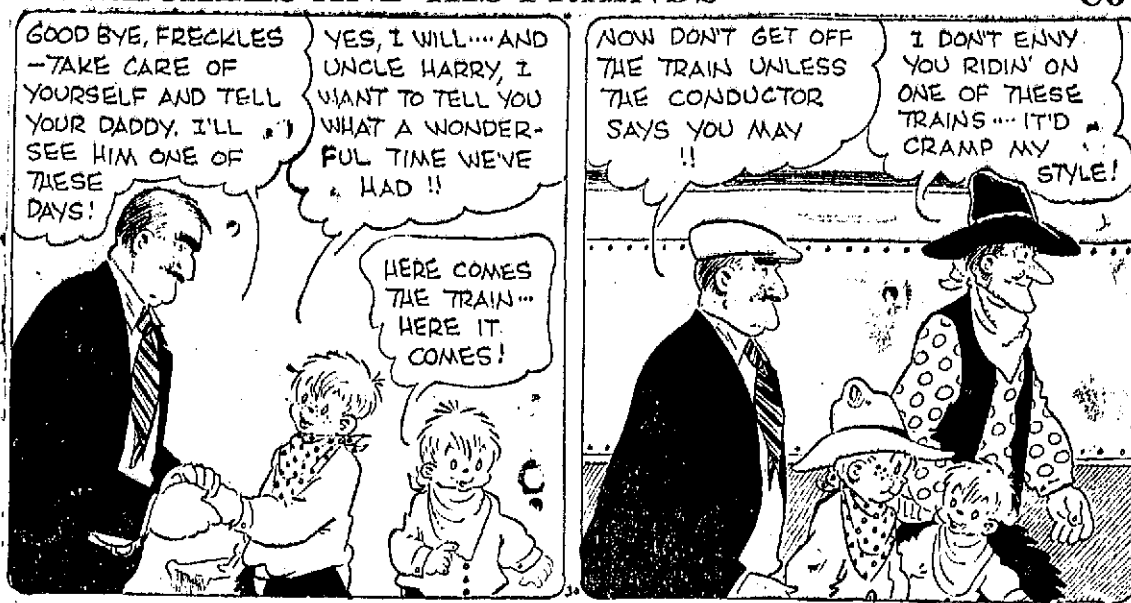

Kearns, according to the story, did the parting by removing Hayes from the firm.

Hayes was directly in charge of the affairs of Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, a n d Kearns, who was in California, thought that Hayes should have done something to prevent Mrs. Walker from starting divorce proceedings against the champion.

Substitutions In Last Night's Fight Seem To Make Card Better

Main Event Battler and Two Prelims Run Out of Engagements But Last-Minute Substitutions Give Crowd A Rattling Good Show.

ordinarily when a main event contestant runs out of a fight, or fails to show up, and is followed by two preliminary entrants, a boxing card would be a flop. But last night the shoulders of Leo Robins were draped with horseshoes, for his last-minute substitutions gave the crowd near as good a show as if the advertised card had been staged.

Tillman, from Texas, slated to meet Taylor in a ten-round final, failed to show and Debs Dean, of Cotton Valley La., went on in his place. The fight was shortened to eight rounds but it was a fast match, the men dividing honors and the mix called a draw. Both Dean and Taylor are plenty clever and willing and certainly put up a good exhibition. Fans would like to see the two go on for ten rounds.

Johnny Hall, of Little Rock, was on hand—but the Louisiana man-cater was far, far from the spot where Johnny stood. Which is perhaps just as well for him, for the Little Rock negro is improving rapidly, perfecting a defense well nigh impenetrable and adding a bit more power to a punch already deadly. Gas House Terry, who would have met Siki had the latter been here, went on with Hall, taking punishment for five rounds and then awarding the bout to Hall.

Razorbacks Face Tough Schedule

Texas University Eleven Comes To State for First Time.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Three Southwest Conference games are included in the schedule of the University of Arkansas Razorbacks for the 1929 football season. One of the Razorbacks' conference foes, the University of Texas, will appear at Fayetteville for the first time.

Under a special ruling of the conference, games the Razorbacks will play with Louisiana State University and Oklahoma A. & M. will count as conference games. The ruling was necessary to permit the Razorbacks to compete for championship honors, as the conference requires each of its teams to meet five conference foes, and the University of Arkansas was unable to schedule more than three.

The fact that four of the Razorbacks' five conference games come on consecutive week-ends makes the schedule an unusually hard one. Five of the nine games on the schedule are to be played at Fayetteville.

The games with Oklahoma A. & M. and Texas Aggies have been annual affairs. The other foes have been included only on schedules of intermittent years.

The Razorbacks' schedule is as follows:

September 28—College of the Ozarks, at Fayetteville.

October 5—Henderson State Teacher's College at Fayetteville.

October 12—University of Texas, at Fayetteville.

October 19—Baylor University at Waco, Tex.

October 26—Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, at College Station, Texas.

November 2—Louisiana State University at Shreveport.

November 9—East Central Oklahoma Teachers College, at Fayetteville.

November 16—Centenary College, at Fayetteville.

November 28—Oklahoma A. & M. College, at Stillwater, Okla.

Peel, Isle of Man, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Superstitious residents of this ancient town are intimating that a "look out for the dog" warning might be posted among the ruins of Peel castle.

The dog in question is the "Moody Dhoe" of Manx legend. The name means simply "Black Dog," but the story goes that this particular hound was a ghost that used to haunt the old castle when it housed a garrison of soldiers.

It seems the soldiers in time became accustomed to the apparition; and while they never relished its company, they contented themselves with throwing it no bones.

One night, however, one of the soldiers in a flare of drunken daring declared he would follow the ghost hound to its lair. He trailed it down a dark passage. On returning he was sober and speechless with terror. He died, the story relates, before he could tell what befell him.

Coast Guards In Another Shooting

Man In Hospital With Bullet Wounds In Side.

PORT CLEMENTS, O., August 30.—(AP)—Rutherford, 23, of Port Clements, is in a hospital today with bullet wounds in his side alleged to have been inflicted by coast guards. His condition is critical.

Hayes declares the shooting occurred while he was trying out a speed boat. He was having motor trouble and was trying to adjust it when the coast guard cutter bore down on him. He was ordered to surrender, the other being followed by a hail of bullets from a machine gun on the guard boat deck.

Herman In Comeback After Two-Year Layoff

BEAUMONT, Tex., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Tillie "Kid" Herman, former ring idol of the southwest and once one of the game's cleverest welterweights, has emerged from a two-year retirement.

In his first return bout Herman knocked out Rex King of New Orleans. He is fighting 150 pounds and claims to be in the best shape of his career.

which it is claimed, minimizes the chance for graft to creep in. The city shares in the benefits of the government-owned and controlled giant power development on the Canadian side of Niagara Falls. More than three-quarters of a million horsepower has been snatched from the energy going to waste there, and all the region around Toronto is reaping the benefit. We were told that a six room residence can be lighted a month for a dollar, and that the same amount of power which costs $9 in Toronto amounts to around $45 in Buffalo, N. Y., and more in Rochester. Car rides are seven cents each, but with the system of coupon tickets in force the average rate is 6.17 cents. Rail fare over the Canadian National railroad is lower than elsewhere, and the government has recently constructed a $16,000,000 hotel in Toronto and of profits from transportation. The telegraph postoffice and railroad offices are all housed in one building owned by the provincial government.

Argument at Niagara

Speaking of power development from Niagara, right now much is being said on both sides about utilization of this energy. One of the large Toronto newspapers this week editorially scored the policy of Uncle Sam for allowing the private development of the falls, declaring that the Canadian government has been offered 450 millions for its project.

Just as a trip to Arkansas is not complete without a sojourn to the Hot Springs, the tourist who goes to Detroit and fails to see the automobile manufacturing district doesn't know what he missed. The popular notion that one Mr. Henry Ford is the king pin of the industry seems to be pretty well borne out if one is to believe the following figures: Capacity of plant, 9,200 cars per day; number of employees, more than 120,000; daily payroll, $760,000; raw materials furnished from Ford's own mines and hauled over his railroad and ship lines; plant covers 1,200 acres. There are nearly 50 automobile plants in Detroit, employing, it is claimed, nearly 300,000 men. In the face of this can one wonder why Detroit lays claim to having swept the world off its feet?

There. Having ascertained that she would be there for at least two hours, they relaxed their vigilance. When the coast was clear, a clerk came to tell Molly, and she slipped out the service entrance into a waiting cab. She lunched alone at a quiet hotel. And reached the station in ample time to board the train leisurely with Rita and Marie.

Some hours later Bob discovered that she had left town and taken Rita and the nurse with her. She had left no word as to her destination, and he was beset with fears. If he reported her disappearance to the police, he would be making a laughing stock of himself. It he took no notice of it, she might remain away indefinitely.

I've told you. I'll keep you posted. Don't forget your name—Mrs. William Blake. . . Oh, say, I almost forgot to tell you—I ran into a bird last night who thought Ashes of Desire was a crime book. What do you know about that?"

"Why not?" she retorted. "You don't think I'm kidding myself that everyone reads my stuff, do you?" Red laughed.

"Well, this particular bird was a chap named Jack Wells," he declared. "I've sent him one of the copies you autographed for me. That's a fact, Molly. He said he thought it was another one of those things. Meaning, I take it, that he didn't think so much of Delphine and Sacrifice."

Molly laughed. "He used to want me to write poetry," she said. "Poetry, or fairy stories. You'll let me know if you hear anything special from him, Red?"

"Sure," he promised. "I'll shoot you a wire tonight." Molly telephoned the Ritz, and made an appointment for a facial, a manicure and a shampoo. When the reporters, waiting on the steps besieged her, she told them, truthfully, that she had an engagement at the beauty shop. Being suspicious folks, by nature and by training, they trailed her in another taxi.

When she went in the Ritz, one of them phoned to ask if Miss Burnham had an appointment
